

Bryan Fluech

Bryan Fluech is the Florida Sea Grant Extension Agent for Collier County. His extension work focuses on recreational marine fisheries, resource stewardship, and marine education. Specifically, Bryan's education and outreach programs educate anglers and citizens on methods to minimize impacts on local fisheries and surrounding natural resources. He helps coordinate a fishing line recovery and recycling program, assists in the management of the county's artificial reef program, conducts youth sport fishing programs, and is an instructor for the Florida Master Naturalist Program. He also serves on the advisory board of the Rookery Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve and Board of Directors for the Florida Natural Resource Leadership Institute. Bryan has a B.S. in Biology from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and M.Ed in Secondary Science Education from the University of Florida.
