

Sally McPherson

Sally McPherson, a lead communications and intergovernmental outreach specialist, at the South Florida Water Management District, has been with the District for more than 19 years serving in a variety of positions. Her responsibilities have always included communicating the roles, responsibilities and interests of the water management district to the general public, students and teachers at all levels, foreign delegations and elected officials.

Sally has lived in Florida almost all her life. She grew up in central Florida and lived in southeast Florida most of her adult life, moving to southwest Florida in 2002 to work at the Lower West Coast Service Center in Fort Myers. She also works in Collier, Charlotte and Hendry Counties.
